

Key Club To Announce 'Key Heart' At Dance Tonight

Key Club is sponsoring the first Key-Heart dance, "That Girl," tonight in the cafeteria. The purpose of this dance is to announce the 1967 "Key-Heart." Each club in the nation chooses an annual "Key-Heart," who is their representative or hostess at any Key Club event and any event associated with Kiwanis.

The following ten senior girls are candidates for "Key Heart:"

Betty Black, who is A.S.B. Historian, a courtesy girl, and a member of the drill team; Sue Brunner, a cheerleader, who is also League of Dresden president this semester; Shelby Gates, a member of Dasidrian, and ticket chairman for the Inaugural Ball, and Pam Hogsett, a Valkyr, senior gift chairman, and Inaugural Ball royalty chairman.

Also, Kathy Kendall, a Valkyr, League of Dresden representative, and member of the entertainment committee for the Dad-Daughter Dessert; Julie Voelker, a cheerleader, decorations chairman for the Inaugural Ball, and picture chairman for the Dad-Daughter Dessert; Cathy Wiseman, a member of Dasidrian and Pep Club, and treasurer of the senior class; Nancy Rowand, president of Pep Club, and League of Dresden representative, and Tricia Dibblee, representative of Ferris to Girls' State, and a member of Dasidrian.

Each candidate was given a locker located outside room 401. Each locker was decorated with pictures of the girls. The entire student body continues voting today by dropping money into the candidates' lockers. Each penny stands for a vote. The winner will be chosen by the highest number of votes.

The dance is a "boy ask girl" and "girl ask boy" date dance, the first of the year. The dress is dressy wools and the cost is $1.25 per couple.

General chairman, Doug Baker, is being supported by officers Rog Feldman, president; Bob Merck, vice-president; Wayne Sepolen, secretary; and Rick Graff, sergeant-at-arms. Mr. Bob Johnson is their adviser.

Orientation Night Planned Here For Seniors, Parents

Senior - Parents' Orientation Night will be held Tuesday at 7:45 p. m. in the Auditorium. The purpose is to give students and parents the opportunity to receive general information concerning cost, financial aid, and descriptions of the colleges and the courses they offer.

The six colleges that will be on hand are Gonzaga University, Eastern Washington State College, Spokane Community College, Fort Wright and Whitworth Colleges and Washington State University.

The first 15 minutes will be devoted to general descriptions of the colleges, costs and financial aid. The remainder of the time has been allotted for students and parents to select two colleges to find out more about what they offer and how they can help a student's career. This enables students and parents to have more personal contact with the people representing the schools and should help students to select a school wisely.

This meeting for seniors and their parents is a wonderful chance to become familiar with the various colleges in Eastern Washington and their offerings.

PROJECT 81 RESEARCHES INNOVATION, CONTRIBUTES TO EDUCATION'S ADVANCE

Joel E. Ferris, along with 35 other schools scattered over the United States and Mexico, is an I/D/E/A (Institute for the Development of Educational Activities) demonstration school. I/D/E/A is a Charles F. Kettering project.

This means that it works with new ideas in the way of educational philosophies, organizational approaches, methods of instruction and types of facilities. Here at Ferris we have the school district's Projects 81 Center which is federally funded by Title III and closely tied to I/D/E/A.

Learning Individualized

The Projects 81 Center tries to individualize learning, improve the effectiveness of the teachers, and help other schools and community groups in the region to understand and carry out new educational practices. This is done by such things as providing for demonstrations of new educational practices, conducting periodic conferences and seminars, evaluating new curricular programs, helping the area in the development of new educational programs and providing consultants to assist in the development of these new programs.

Meaning For Ferris

But what exactly does this mean to Ferris?

Though larger than Ferris itself, Project 81 is involved with implementation, research and dissemination of educational programs based on studies carried out within the framework of Ferris.

Joel E. Ferris High School is the vehicle by which some Project 81 goals are being met. It provides a demonstration ground for innovative practices, conducts periodic conferences and seminars dealing with innovative subjects, is used in evaluation of new curricular programs and assists in the area of innovative educational program development.

Students Benefit

While furthering the cause of educational research and development, Ferris offers students the benefit of years of tested innovative practices in education, thereby both students and education in general benefit.

The Projects 81 Center personnel at Ferris are Project Director, Dr. Harry Finnegan; Director of Research and School Community Relations, Mr. Gordon Erickson and Director of Dissemination between the 35 demonstration schools, Mr. Morris H. (Skip) Fixley.

'Oliver' To Open

The Ferris drama, art and music fourth annual musical, "Oliver," at 8:00 p. m. The production will continue playing through Friday in the Ferris auditorium.

Adapted from Charles Dicken's novel, "Oliver Twist," the musical as a happier story than the original version. The first scene opens in an English workhouse where some orphans are singing for their gruel. Oliver makes the mistake of asking for more and is promptly punished. He is sold to Mr. Sowerberry, an undertaker, (played by David Paulson). He soon runs away to London, where he meets a pickpocket, known as the Artful Dodger (Tyrus Tennold). The Dodger introduces Oliver to Fagin (Jim Castino) who teaches him the art of being a pickpocket. The excitement begins when Oliver (Judy Boyce and Marcia Ross) tries pickpocketing on his own and is arrested. The story includes crime, murder, romance, and violence. It is excellently portrayed by students who have learned the American version of a Cockney accent.

Commenting on "Oliver!", Judy Boyce said, "We aren't just performing, we're having fun, and we hope to convey this to the audience."

Urging everyone to attend, director Miss Brown said: "This is going to be a show with comedy, flashy numbers, and catchy music — the kind young people enjoy."

Ferris Journalists Attend Conference

Two Ferris High School students attended the School Publications Conference held at the University of Washington. Donna Tombari, senior, represented the "Saxon Chronicles" at the conference, and Pati Dahmen, junior, was "Exeter" representative.

Sponsored by the University of Washington School of Communications, the purpose of the conference was to acquaint students with the problems of journalism and to attempt to solve these problems.

The conference was divided into two sections, one for newspapers and one for yearbooks.

Cockney while in London last summer, said that "the combined efforts of Miss Brown and her assistants make this a performance that Ferris students will thoroughly enjoy and long remember as one of Ferris' outstanding musicals."

Speaking of Literature . . .

Dealing with controversial literature is a touchy matter. Too many people can get "up in arms" due to conflicts in religious, political and moral beliefs.

It takes courage for a school to take a stand on such a controversial subject. It takes courage for students to stand up and speak about this type of literature.

Recently a group of seniors united in a panel under the direction of Mrs. Lois Neswick, senior English teacher, to discuss this subject.

After extensive research including interviews with parents, teachers, ministers and book stores, the members of the panel expressed their own views based on this work. None of them believe in censorship. They feel that all books should be available to mature students in high school and public libraries. They wish that literature of this type could be openly discussed between students and teachers with emphasis based on literary qualities rather than on plot and characters.

We can be proud of these seniors. They represent well a school based on maturity and individual judgment. —D. T.

If You Don't Try, Don't Gripe

As you walk leisurely down the crowded halls of Joel E. Ferris High School during a module change, you can overhear various comments about our school.

Many of these comments, although they are real opinions, are not well thought out. Eavesdrop sometime and this is what you might come up with: Why don't they warm up this place? Why don't they quiet down these study halls? Why don't they try harder in sports? Why don't they make the cons and dances better?

They, they, they! Why don't you get on the ball and participate? This is your school and these are your activities. The only way for you to make this school a great school is to participate. Sign up for those dance committees, get in that con, yell at the games. Yell! Applaud! Participate! Don't wait for the school to become exciting, make it that way. —G. K.

Ferris Forum

(Editor's note: This column appears in the "Saxon Chronicles" as an opportunity for students to express their opinions on world, national, local and school affairs. The opinions written here do not necessarily coincide with those of the Chronicles staff or Ferris High School Administration.)

Manners, manners, manners, mind your manners, don't do this, do this. Is this what you get from your parents? It is good advice and it should be followed. The boys of this school follow this a lot better than the editorial in the last SAXON CHRONICLES stated.

When a student walks down the wrong side of the hall, or makes it hard for a person to get to his assigned seat, then he must suffer the results. Boys do not try to be impolite and rude to girls or teachers.

There are a few underclassmen who do not have the maturity or the sense of responsibility to understand this, but as a whole the boys are completely above board as far as manners are concerned.

Whose fault is it? The girl who tries to go OUT the IN door; the girl who walks down the wrong side of the hall or the girl that walks down the middle of a traffic lane in the parking lot?

Is it her fault, or that of the poor sap who bumps into her and gets tabbed as rude or "ungentlemanly"?

It is not practical for a person to walk down halls and try to isolate himself from the crowd. How many times have you walked down the hall and seen a gaggle of three or four girls standing around sounding like a chicken yard at feeding time.

When they are late for a class and are in a hurry, guys do not want to spend a lot of time holding doors for a bunch of girls. There is no excuse for slamming a door in anyone's face, but do not confuse this with just walking through and letting it close.

As for books being knocked to the floor, this happens often and in many cases it is the boy who helps to pick them up.

Usually if the girl wants her books to be held for her while she is on the bus or when she is trying to do something else, all she has to do is ask.

Times are changing and many boys are not going to go out of their way to show their manners. But the male population is not rude and they know how to treat a lady. Please remember that courtesy is a two-way street and both sexes must do their part.

Chivalry is not dead, it has just cooled off some.

Whenever a girl thinks that she is being mistreated, she may have to look back and make sure that she is not in the wrong. Mutual effort is the best way. Manners are not extinct and chivalry is still here. Look closely and you shall see that the boys of Ferris are well mannered and know how to treat and respect the opposite sex.

Yesterday was really some day!

In the morning I didn't have much studying to do so I went to a popular study hall thinking I would chat with some friends. Just as I sat down at the table, the study hall teacher walked up and reminded us to study and be quiet. I thought, "All right, we'll study for a while . . . just until you turn your back."

But it didn't work that way. No, the minute we started to talk about the last science test, he shook his finger at us and told us to stop talking. Oooh, how maddening could he get? I mean, we were talking about a school subject! But it worked. We sat there silently fuming and thinking of revenge. But soon, even the effect of this attempt wore off, and I was gaily hashing over last weekend's happenings.

Just guess what happened! He stomped up, blamed all the noise on me, and told me to leave at module change. OK, leaving was all right, because I had a class anyway. But to single me out, and blame it all on me! It just wasn't fair!

I had classes the rest of the morning and in each I accumulated home work due early next week. So by my study time in the afternoon, I decided I really wanted to work hard.

I went into a study hall and sat down alone, but was soon surrounded by a group of strangers. What noisy kids! The teacher told them three times to quiet down, but they just kept talking. I'd never seen such noisy kids, unless my group in the morning . . . They sure made me mad.

I left at module change and slipped quietly into a favorite teacher's room after whispering, "Can I study in here?" She answered with a jovial "Yes, you may," and proceeded to pry at me with questions. I thought, "Fine, she'll quiet down pretty soon."

But about that time a group of my friends walked by. Catching a glimpse of me, they thundered in, slapped their books on the table and greeted me with such sensible remarks as, "Oh, here you are!" Rather than get involved in their conversation, I left at module change, using a class as an excuse.

I wandered down the hall wondering where I could go to really study. I came across the study hall I had been in the morning. I sneaked in and sat down at the table nearest the door. This place was really quiet. Everyone was busy. As I pored over the books the time really whizzed by, and before I looked at the clock a second time it was 2:30. The last one to leave, I had to walk right past my enemy, the study hall teacher. Guess what! He smiled! And in response, I gave a kind of sheepish grin and muttered a hardly audible, "Thanks."

Katie Wells

Katie Wells is all the Saxon spirit rolled into one peppy, active, and friendly Ferris senior. Besides being a cheerleader, which takes most of her time, Katie is a member of Courtesy Girls, an A.S.B. representative and a senior class representative.

In her junior year Katie headed the Dad-Daughter Dessert entertainment committee and held the office of League of Dresden historian. She also represented her homeroom at Junior class meetings.

Skiing and Scuba Diving

Katie spends her winters "shooshing" down the slopes of Mt. Spokane and Schweitzer Basin. During the summer she goes in for water skiing. Last summer adventurous Katie found another thrill when she borrowed a scuba outfit and explored the depths of northwestern lakes.

Next year this Ferris cheerleader will attend the University of Washington to major in education. "After that, nothing's definite."

Spirited Cheerleader

Katie, being a cheerleader, had these comments on school spirit. "It's too bad," she explained, "that there's not a better turnout when the football players work so hard." But the school deserves a pat on the back for the enthusiasm shown at the North Central and Rogers games. A word of optimism, "Winning isn't everything!"

Bob Merck

Dependability is his by-word, a smile his trademark. Senior Bob Merck is well-known for his initiative and his friendliness. He works hard at everything he attempts.

Bob's school activities got off to a start in his sophomore year when he was elected Associated Student Body home room representative. A year later, Bob was elected Junior class representative.

Active in A.S.B.

Among his duties as a senior was chairmanship of the Saxon Day convocation. Many recognized him in the role of Tubby Fink. He is now vice-president of the Key Club and recent chairman of the club's car rally. Wishing to help promote school spirit, he joined Spirit Committee. Bob is now vice-president of A.S.B.

People-to-People Ambassador

The highlight of his summer was his "People-to-People" tour in Europe. Bob said he had a great time, with many experiences he will be able to look back upon with a smile.

When asked how he felt about the tour Bob said, "It was the greatest experience I've had, and I hope I get the opportunity to return."

Faculty Footnotes

A former Lewis and Clark High School teacher and football coach well-known for his leadership in the People-to-People program considers Ferris "a school of great opportunity."

Mr. H. M. "Skip" Louderback went to school in Wilbur, Washington and attended Whitman College. His teaching career includes ten years at Kettle Falls, Sandpoint, Idaho and Raymond. He taught for one year in London, England, and for 20 years at Lewis and Clark.

He is well remembered for his coaching years at L.C. His son-in-law now holds the same position.

Besides teaching chemistry he is coordinator of math and science here at Ferris. Commenting on the modular system, Mr. Louderback said, "It makes a lot of sense to have different amounts of time available for the various purposes for which classes are organized."

His hobbies include photography and a summer geology course, during which he has led a field trip to the Rocky Mountains for the last 13 years. He is also interested

Office Volunteers Offer Study Time

"I couldn't get along without them," declared Mrs. Alfstad. She was speaking about the student volunteers who give up their free time to help the secretaries.

Coming in during study time, before school and after school, the girls do everything from writing blue slips to answering students' questions. The clerical practice class and the Courtesy Girls also send members in to help.

Mrs. Alfstad is very happy with the volunteer help she has had so far. She would like more girls to volunteer time after school. After most students have gone home the office is very shorthanded.

Girls who are now helping as student office workers are Judy Boyce, Cindy Brask, Patty Buck, Ann Byers, Marsha Hayes, Pam Jarvis, Cathy Kessler, Julie Koeppler, Kathy and Pam McClanahan, Debbie Moore and Judi Sandstrom.

League Picks Girl of Month

Every month the League of Dresden selects a girl from a different department to become Girl of the Month. This month Claudia Haspedis was chosen from the language area. Claudia is in her fourth year of German and her fourth year of French. She likes the latter better because "it is easier and more fun."

A committee headed by Dorcas Wylder decided what department would be represented and which girl would be selected. The choice was then announced in the League con on October 18. When asked about her reaction to the choice, Claudia said, "I was very surprised and honored."

Pam Haidle was Girl of the Month last month. She was named the best big sister. She went to and from school with her "little sister," Debbie Carpenter. She also met Debbie for lunch and helped her get to know the routine at Ferris.

Clinics, Marching Keep Saxons Busy

Ferris' music department this year has been and will continue to be busy. On a drizzly Saturday morning Saxon band members went to Salk Junior High School's field by bus to practice for a show given at half time for the Washington State University-Arizona game.

The band practiced with 2,007 other bandsmen from high schools throughout the Inland Empire. When asked how it went, one very tired band member replied, "It was wet!" All of the bands, despite the weather succeeded in making the formation of the giant letters S-T-A-T-E.

Debate Season Opens

The Ferris debate team began its second year of interschool competition November 2. Their first opponent was the West Valley team.

The national topic for this year is: "Resolved, that Congress should establish uniform criminal investigation procedures. Members of the varsity team this year are Tom Tomlinson and Marcia Ross affirmative; Bill Myhre and Nancy Carlson, negative. The adviser is Mr. George Rogalski.

FIVE FIGHTING SAXONS submerge Gonzaga runner at Hart Field.

GRIDDERS END SEASON

Ferris ends their football season today by meeting Shadle Park. Should the Saxons win this game, it would give Ferris the most successful season in our short history in the city league. Give the team some support and help make this a great victory for Ferris by coming to the game.

North Central 13—Ferris 0

It was simply a case of who could slide better, NC or Ferris, and the Indians pulled out a 13-0 upset on the slimy North Central field. The Saxons' superior speed and passing attack was slowed by the muddy field and they were forced to play North Central's game. Grant Dyke went to the air in the fourth quarter and ended up with seven of eleven for 98 yards and the best record in the league for a quarterback on the muddy day.

The game was won by the "mud lovers" on the ground as they continuously splashed past sliding Saxon defensemen.

The weather was a bad break for the favored Saxons and it's not hard to think how much different it might have been on a decent field.

L.C. 32—Ferris 0

The Ferris Saxons football team lost to their arch-rivals Lewis and Clark in the team's second meeting of the season. The loss, a shut-out of 32-0, gave the Saxons fifth place in the league and a 1-5 record for the season.

Lewis and Clark jumped to a quick 18-0 halftime lead, scoring the first three times they had their hands on the ball. Tiger quarterback Bill Etter scored once in the third quarter and went in for six again in the fourth quarter to bring the total to 32.

Ferris' offense threatened three times, only to be turned away by the Tiger defense, but on several occasions throughout the game the Saxons looked good, especially on a 41 yard pass play to Larry Goncalves and a 33 yard toss from Grant Dyke to Tim Vawter which went to the L.C. 11 yard line.

In the rushing department, Rick Graff, Bill Poindexter, and Ken Krebs each rushed for better than three yards per carry. Graff gained 38 yards for the third straight game and a strong 3.2 average.

Gonzaga 34—Ferris 20

The Saxons looked great against the tough Pup squad and battled them to a near deadlock for the first three quarters. Ferris jumped off to a 6-0 lead in the first quarter with Andy Koss ending a drive by diving in from the two yard line. The Pups then bounced back for two touchdowns and a 14-6 lead. Then, on the kickoff after Prep's first touchdown, Larry Goncalves, a 10-second man in the 100 yard dash, darted down the sidelines for a 92 yard touchdown and it was 14-12 at the half.

On the second play of the second half, Rick Graff nailed the Gonzaga quarterback in the end zone for two points and a 14-14 tie. Prep scored again for a 21-14 lead but the Saxon's weren't done yet. Grant Dyke went to the air and hit five of six passes on the next touchdown drive which was capped by a six yard strike to Larry Goncalves for the score. The kick was wide and it was 21-20.

The Saxons held Gonzaga at the nine yard line but a fumble gave it back to the Pups deep in Saxon territory. Gonzaga scored to make it 28-20. With six minutes left in the tilt, the Saxons had to punt on a fourth down and inches to go and Gonzaga drove for another touchdown for the final score of 34-20.

Grant Dyke had a field day for the Saxons by hitting 14 completions for 129 yards and Larry Goncalves led the scoring with two touchdowns.

Frosh End Season

Ferris freshman football players ended their football season after losing to the tough Lewis and Clark freshmen 7-0, in a very close game. The Saxon team was not only ready physically but mentally. Every freshman player was looking his best. They had been working very hard the past week and were well prepared to take on the L.C. frosh, who downed the freshman team of last year by a considerable margin.

The frosh ended their season with a 1-4 record. In their recent game against Gonzaga's frosh team they scored early in the first quarter as Roger Anglesey ran for the touchdown. The Bullpups then came back to score in the first half and the score was 7-6 at the half. The Saxon defense failed to stop the Bullpup drive in the second half and they lost 20-6.

SAXON SPORTLITE

The quarterback is the man who runs a football squad. He must be able to think and think fast. He is also required to have a strong arm. These qualifications make a good quarterback, Grant Dyke is a good quarterback.

Grant has been running the offense at Ferris for two years and despite many fingertip misses by receivers in the past, he is in the top five passers in the league consistently.

A person who excels in one field usually excels in others. Grant has been a member of the Ferris varsity track and basketball teams in the past.

Grant went to Hamblen grade school and played tackle on the football team. At Sacajawea in eighth grade, he got his first shot at first string quarterback when a certain well known QB from L. C. was injured and Grant took over the spot midway through the season. Although the injured QB returned to action, Grant battled for and kept his spot.

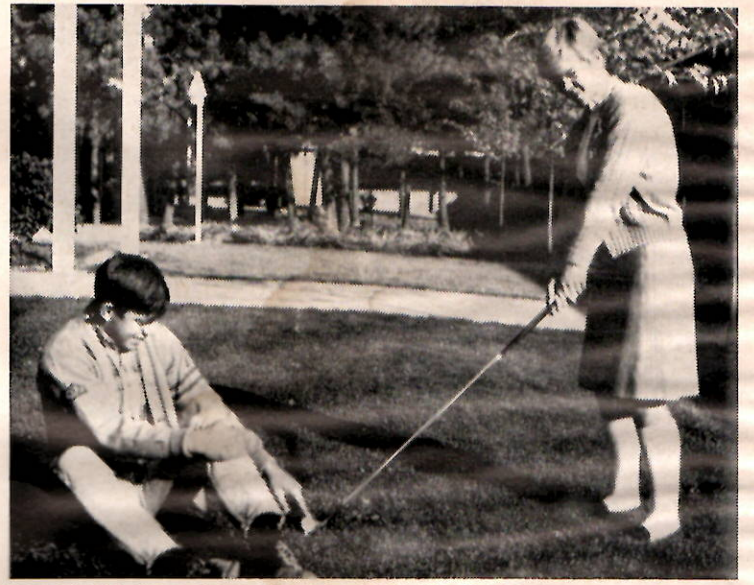

He plans to go to Washington State University although he has had offers from other schools in the area for his football skills.

B-Squad Gridmen Destroy Tigers

The Saxon B-Squad won their first game of the season when they went against the Lewis and Clark Tigers. The B-Squad downed the Tigers 14-7 with Doug Gill and Jack Nelson making the touchdowns. The Saxons now have a record of two ties, one win, and three losses in their season so far.

They were disappointed after losing to the West Valley B-Squad 14-12. The boys scored twice in the first two quarters and the score was 12-0 after the first half in favor of the Saxons. The strong West Valley team then came back in the second half to score twice, making points after the touchdowns, which won the game for them 14-12. The Saxons drove to the 15 yard line and threatened to score in the fourth quarter but failed to do so with penalties sending them back to the thirty yard line.

After playing the L.C. B-Squad, the Saxons look forward to the last game of their season, which will be against North Central.

Golfers Grab Title

by Tom Canning

Coach Herb Watson went wild with joy as Dick Bingham marched off the course in triumph, rendering his team city champs and upsetting the city leaders, Shadle Park.

Individually at the all-city match, most of the players shot over what they had been shooting previously, but as a whole they shot consistently and grabbed the title for the Saxons. The scores were as follows: Mike O'Brien, 39; Steve Solomon, 39; Scott Gamelin, 40; Bruce Cromwell, 40; Jim Breen, 43, and Dick Bingham, 38.

Bingham, despite a slow start this year, battled his way to the top six and by the end of the year was shooting par golf. This Spring, Dick should be one of the finest men on the squad.

Mike O'Brien, who is acknowledged as the top player in the school and is highly rated in city-wide competition, was one of the driving forces that led the team to victory. Mike will be tops in the upcoming battle for the title this Spring.

Asked about golf, Herb Watson said, "Golf is an individual effort, and except for the team total depends completely on the individual." Herb reports that all the members on the squad are excellent players and that he is looking forward to being in the Everett golf invitational this Spring.

Also on the squad are Bill Reser, Bruce Goldstein, Neil Dennie, Rich Carlson, Steve Haskell, Doug Loomis, Gary Ayars, and Brian Ross. Mr. Watson reports that these are all golfers that will be in contention for the top six this spring.

This column will be dedicated to athletic performances and achievements by Saxon sportsmen.

Congratulations to the Ferris boys' golf team who pulled off a big upset in the fall all-city golf tourney. The Saxons, who finished second in the city division of the regular season, outscored Shadle Park 239 to 242 to capture the title. Dick Bingham led the victory by shooting a 38, which was the best score posted by a number six man in the tournament. Although Dick has been off the circuit for three years, he really bounced back this season and worked hard for this big win.

On the gridiron scene, Karl Olsen became the first Saxon to take a lead in a football department this year by moving ahead in the punting average statistics with a booming average of 36.9 yards per kick. He replaces Jim Ivory of L.C. as the leading booter.

Recently on the hunting scene, some Saxon woodsmen found themselves on the spot. After almost bagging their limit of birds near Cheney in the early hours of the day, Tom Canning and Jim Stejer stumbled upon a game reserve sign. Realizing their obvious mistake they packed their birds into Canning's 1947 Hunting Woody (with a new vinyl top) and headed for home. We hope other Ferris hunters will have better luck than these lads.
