MR. KENT VARTY examines one of the prints which hangs in the new 400 Building hallway gallery.

Hallways Take On Gallery Atmosphere

The Ferris Art Department and the Associated Student Body together produced an art gallery effect on the first floor of the 400 Building by hanging 19 framed prints on the walls. The pictures are by famous artists such as Henry Matisse, Georges Roualt. Tououse Lautrec, Lyonel Feininger, Neil Parson, Marc Chagall, Seurat and Aoleset.

The paintings will be changed regularly so students and visitors will not become tired of the same paintings. Mr. Kent Varty, a Ferris art teacher who has been working with the ASB said sometimes he will display art work done by some of his students. Mainly the pictures will be reproductions of some of the more famous paintings.

Funds for the project were donated and collected by many of the clubs and organizations earlier this year

Mr. Varty hopes that in the future he can continue putting up pictures through the remainder of the 400 Building and the entire school. He said that it will take additional money and time on the part of the students.

"THE ROYAL FAMILY" is a comic satire on the famous stage family, the Barrymores. Ferris Thespians, under the direction of Miss Lillian Brown, presented the play Thursday. The cast included Carol Hastings, Carol Schmeltzer, Tom Tomlinson, Marsha Ross, Eric Johnson, Vic Wold, Janice Johnson, Gary Homan and Jim Castino.

Stansbury In Youth Science Congress; Project on Water Pollution Earns Trip

Mike Stansbury was selected as a participant in the Youth Science Congress, which is held annually by Ames Research Center in Palo Alto, California April 17-19, Mike will fly down to California April 16, all expenses paid, to tour the area and give a speech on his project, "Chitin — More Pollution?" Chitin is the material crab shells are made of.

Mike got the idea for his project when he was in Kodiak, Alaska. He has worked for the Fish and Game Service in that area for the last two years and noticed the many crab shells that litter and pollute the beaches. Mike has worked on his project since September, trying to find ways to prevent pollution.

Previously Mike has won blue ribbons in fairs and was awarded the "Outstanding Science Student of the Year" at Libby. This is his highest honor so far.

Amateur or Not?

The Olympic Games for the winter of 1968 have just been completed. Are these games really worth all of the effort that the world puts into them? They are supposed to be world-wide games yet only 33 countries were able to send competitors. ABC-TV sent more than 250 technicians at a cost of approximately 5.5 million dollars to provide television coverage. The competition seems not to be among the competitors but among the national leaders.

True, it is a very great honor to win a gold medal. It means national honor. But the games should be fair to all competitors. The recent winter games were not. Why should amateurs have to compete against professional athletes such as the ones who come from the Soviet Union? The Soviets claim their athletes to be amateurs and in a rigid interpretation of the definition they are, but the Soviet Union gives their athletes government jobs for which they never need show up and are allowed unlimited practice time.

As a sportswriter recently noted, the Soviets are not professionals, they just get "free" room and board and living expenses and are allowed to practice with their teammates 365 days a year.

But other countries insist that their athletes be pure amateurs before they are eligible for the Olympics. This presents a terrible barrier for the amateurs even before they get into the game and this can be demonstrated by the U. S. hockey team and how poorly they did as a result of not enough practice together. Marielle Goitschel, one of France's top women skiers stated, "As far as I'm concerned the Olympics have become one huge question of political prestige. It's just not fun - and it's just not sport." The Olympics committee has taken steps to insure that all of the competitions will be fair, why don't they try to make all of the athletes who compete, compete on an equal level.

Teenage Driving Methods Poor

"Laying a patch" may impress teenagers but how does it impress adults?

Rarely a day passes that a student fails to hear some comment of the driving record of teenagers. Insurance companies have accurate statistics as to the discouraging amount of traffic accidents among teenagers and they don't hesitate to publish these results.

But it is not only insurance companies that are against teenagers. Mr. Richard L. Goen, head of the Stanford Research Institute, feels that anyone under the age of 21 shouldn't be allowed the privileges of a driver's license. In a report made by the Institute and published in the May 23, 1966, issue of U. S. News and World Report, one way mentioned to reduce highway accidents was to restrict all teenagers'

Needless to say, not every teenage driver is a bad driver. There are many very careful and good teenage drivers, but unfortunately there are some bad ones, too. And it is the reputation of the few that ruin the reputation of the many. Teenage drivers lack only experience in order to become good drivers - most any Driver Education teacher will tell you that. Due to the fact that teenagers have faster reaction times, they should be better drivers than those drivers in older age groups. But why aren't they? Is it perhaps that they don't know as much as they think —N. S. they do? Or could it be immaturity?

Faculty Footnotes

The Saxon Chronicles recognizes a Ferris celebrity - the witty, enrapturing, amiable, refreshing, perhaps the most humorous Ferris has ever enjoyed, Mr. John Kingsland, who is current president of the National Mickey Mouse Club. What's more, he said "I played Santa Claus back in the days when Mr. Ron Miller played Rudolph the Red Nosed Reindeer at Northwest Seed." Way to be Mr. Kingsland!

Speaking of past associations with Mr. Miller, he recalled when he taught him at Irving Grade School. Mr. Kingsland said, "Mr. Miller was a very nice little boy in a harmless sort of way."

Mr. Kingsland feels that this year's Junior and Senior classes are "the friendliest, most cooperative and most fun to work with of any classes I've seen at Ferris."

When asked who his idols are and why, Mr. Kingsland said, "I idolize Mr. Rogalski for his sophisticated urbaneness and Mr. Miller, Mr. Reid and Mr. Wylder for their savoir-faire."

During the interview Mr. Kingsland began singing his favorite song. "Come along and join the crowd that's made for you and me. M-I-C-K-E-Y M-O-U-S-E. Mickey Mouse . . ."

Shadow Outdated; Students Tell Own Spring Indicators

When the ground hog comes up for his shadow, spring is almost here. But Ferris students have different indicators of the coming of spring. They can tell that it is "that" time of year when:

Eija Parviainen: "I don't feel like sitting in one place for more than two minutes at a time.'

Shelby Gates: "When the snow begins to melt and I get out my sun glasses and cream for skiing.'

Tyrus Tenold: "When Mr. Hunt hits the courts.

Lolly Moss: "When my brother starts to get out his water ski and stands on it all the time."

John Ames: "When everyone starts asking if the snow's showing instead of asking if the stumps are showing."

Rex Gilbert: "When I hear the pitter-patter of big feet from the track squad."

Julie Berg: "When there's dead worms all over the ground. But that happens in the fall, too."

Doug Hahn: "By corn snow." Bonnie Crable: "When my dissected frog begins croaking.

Julie Voelker: "When you see the first buttercup."

Leslie Angel: "When love is bustin' out all over!"

Roger Clemens: "When it rains and rains and rains and rains and rains and rains and rains . . ." Betsy Cain: "Why, don't you know?" Pam Martenson: "When my cat has kittens." Kathy Marquist: "When everyone starts day-dreaming about summer vacation." Jeff Chestnut: "When it starts to rain and everything gets all mucky." Laurel MacDonald: "When someone comes around asking dumb questions about Spring." Mike White: "When the birds and the bees sing and hum . . ."

Heidi Morton: "When it sprungs." Bob Mantz: "Spring is after winter and before summer."

Scott Schell: "When the birds go tweet tweet."

Year of the 'Turtle'

Spring Accents Sporty Attire

The biggest thing in men's fashion since suspenders is coming. It's been quietly gathering momentum in high social circles all winter and is now snowballing its way across the country and will hit Spokane this spring.

Men: the controversial, revolutionary turtle neck is on its way. It will be worn everywhere with everything. There will be white silk turtle necks to be worn with the most formal dinner jackets and mock turtle tee-shirts to go with the grubbiest cut-offs. They will be seen on the ski slopes, on the golf course and even on the beach.

Some fashion experts predict turtle necks will eventually take the place of stiff collars and choking ties. They will come in long sleeves, short sleeves, sweaters, tee-shirts and every color and pattern imaginable.

A very noticeable feature in men's clothing this spring will be what fashion people call the "color explosion." Bright colors will be in everything, but most noticeably in school clothes and sport coats.

In sport shirts, blues, greens, yellows and oranges will be patterned into colorful tattersalls, window panes and small checks. These will be worn with wash and wear slacks.

The pants will definitely be lighter than they have been in the past. Light blue and beige will be popular. They will have a trim fit, but not skin tight. Hopsack will be the popular weave this spring.

For occasions requiring a slightly more "dressed up look," one of the new sport coats can be

The new coats look like everything else this spring, colorful. They come in all colors, however, blues, greens and browns of all shades will be especially popular. Although there are still some solid colors, more and more patterns are appearing. Plaids, checks and window panes will be very popular in sports coats this spring.

For formal wear, three piece suits are becoming increasingly popular. So are the double breasted pin stripe suits, making the wearer look like something out of gangbusters. All of the new suit coats are close cut and follow body contours. This makes a trimmer looking suit and a much more comfortable fit.

The shirts worn with dress suits will be reviving the French cuff, worn with cuff links. Ties are getting a little wider and a little more

In shoes saddles will be best for all around school wear. Both brown on white and black on brown will be popular. For dress, there will be wingtips and an unusual shoe with a square toe, ankle high top and a buckle. The informal shoe for this Spring will be loafers, sandals or the ankle topped "desert

Accessories Bright For Spring Flings

POW! The spring fashion scene explodes with bright prints, sunny stripes and lots of lace. Many accessories compliment the new looks for a Spring fashion fling.

Hats are back on the scene with the Bonnie beret named after the famous lady gangster in the movie "Bonnie and Clyde." They can be pulled straight down on the head or to the side. The berets are in felts and straws. There are also versions of men's hat styles.

The flower is in power over the jewelry scene. Daisies spring up on dresses, ears and fingers. Earrings are popular for this spring. There are shiny gold and silver toned earrings and brightly colored geometric shapes.

Shoes Spark New Season

Explore fashion excitement with the slickest, shiniest colors guaranteed to knock the daylights into your wardrobe. Shoes have never been gayer or more colorful. From a fashion standpoint, the fact of short skirts means that legs and feet are in the limelight as never before.

Shoes may be open and strappy, closed, clumpy or barefoot summer sandal. But good shoe designs are so widely available that it's easy to find up-to-the-minute styling, popular colors and the latest gadgetry at small prices.

With '68 turning to Spring, store windows are displaying an extreme amount of color in their shoes. The fact is being stressed that shoe colors are not geared to match any one color, but allowing anything to go with practically everything.

Today, black and brown are not the only all-purpose choices. Some other colors which might be used as neutrals, for example, ar: a soft shade of red, a mustard gold, a dark or muted green.

If your date dresses are in vivid colors, a taupey grayed brown is a softer foil than black, while deep burgundy sets off most pastels. Shoes for dress-up dates or parties ought to be as feminine as possible. Look for a heel that gives your feet a pretty profile.

Shoes are apt to have taller but still sturdy heels - chunky, squared-off ones. The shoe that isn't taller now is broader. Its toe is fat and squared.

Blending with shoes, are new, sheerer dark stockings. For the most adventurous in fashion's newest fling, you might try the flowered stockings.

These come in phosphorescents, shocking lime, oranges and citrus.

Well sports fans, we've hit the boring part of the year as there just doesn't seem to be too much going on. Basketball and wrestling are over, as is gymnastics and baseball, golf, tennis and track loom ahead.

So, for a Ferris first, we plan to publicize the so called "rat" games that go on in the background. In Southside championship ratball (basketball) competition, the two man team title was grabbed by Craig (Woody) Hallett and his high scoring partner, Pete Parvianen over a field of 10 contestants. The games were held at the O'Brien Astrodome. Other games were held at Lincoln Heights Grade School and Comstock Park.

The slopes of Mount Spokane are slowly deteriorating under the sudden heat wave so several skiers are sitting out the season. It is reported that these victims of misfortune have been playing handball and swimming quite regularly to pass the time.

How about some sports shorts? Flash: Steve Backman eagled the first hole at Downriver Golf Course last Thursday, Flash: Karl Olsen and Ray Batten traded cars.

Water skiers awaken! It is reported that several Ferris students have been donning their wetsuits and heading for Priest Lake to once again ride the wild waves.

Perhaps a good way to end this article would be with a few statistics. Here they are: 3, 19 of 24, 73% and a ratio of 6 to 1.

Girls Place Second At State Invitational

Girls' gymnastics team came in second at the State Invitational Meet at Pullman. Jo Anderson placed second all around. The team score, which is the addition of all individual scores, was 118.53, 15 points less than the score of the winning team, Shadle Park.

Girls placing in the top ten in the different events were:
